Beauty and Silence

These are the two elements that define the work of renowned German artist Anke Blau, whose paintings we chose as a crucial element of these fully realized room settings. We never consider art as a way of dressing a space - it must create a dialogue with our goals and forms. We have three pieces by Blau in our private collection and feel a strong affinity with her work. She has talked about abstraction as being a universal expression of everything, and her work is as contemplative as it is Minimalist in nature. Like us, she takes materials as the starting point for her work. She has sourced weathered textiles infused with a previous life and manipulated them with a simplicity and confidence to create something subtle but profoundly beautiful. As she says, in many cases "it is important to dare to do nothing," which is something we are constantly striving for with our own designs - stripping elements back to the purest essentials. Blau has a masterful eye for color, geometry, and graphics. There is always balance, and an absence of ego. Her work talks to ours in a quiet, erudite way. It creates a unique kind of pleasure within what we consider our perfect spaces.
